

Camping

Grand Canyon National Park

National Park Service
U.S. Department of the Interior

Grapevine Backcountry Use Area – BH9

Grapevine Creek is an "at large" camping area in the "primitive zone" of Grand Canyon National Park, recommended for highly experienced Grand Canyon Hikers. Do your part to practice Leave No Trace in this very special remote area. Bury solid human waste at least 200' from water in a shallow cat hole 4-6" deep and 4-6" wide. Pack out what you bring in. This includes used toilet paper. Protect yourself and the animals by following Grand Canyon's Food Storage Guidelines. Some hikers use Grapevine use area (BH9) as a middle night during a traverse from the Grandview Trailhead to the South Kaibab Trailhead along the Tonto Plateau. Grapevine Canyon is an enormous side canyon and a wonderful place to explore. Grapevine Creek is considered a perennial water source.